Oilers bring back Smyth

► Ryan Smyth's final contract year comes with a $6.25-million cap hit
► Smyth had 23 goals, 24 assists in 82 games with L.A. last season

After a weekend of rumours, Oilers fans were able to officially rejoice yesterday: No. 94 is coming home.

"It's an honour to play in the NHL, for one. And to be welcomed back to an organization where I first started, it's overwhelming," Ryan Smyth said during a conference call from the Shuswap yesterday.

The 35-year-old veteran was acquired from the L.A. Kings in exchange for forward Colin Fraser and a seventh-round draft pick in 2012.

Smyth spent more than a decade with the Oilers after being drafted by the team in 1994. He was traded in a deadline deal in February 2007.

His request to be traded back home, made shortly after the season ended, was for personal reasons, said Smyth.

Many thought the deal was done on Friday, but it hit several snags before the two sides came to an agreement.

"It just has to match up," said Oilers general manager Steve Tambellini. "It takes time."

Smyth said he'll play wherever head coach Tom Renney wants him to, and that he sees a "huge upside" to the young, rebuilding Oilers.

"He'll scratch and claw for every piece of ice time he can get," said Tambellini. "And that's what I want."

When asked if he requested a trade home because he is getting close to retirement, Smyth, who has one year remaining on his contract, laughed.

"That's way far-fetched. I've got many years left in me."

Fans react on Twitter

- @Conal_Mac: The Edmonton Ryans? Whitney, Jones, Nugent-Hopkins, Smyth. All we need is Bobby. #oilers
- @TrevorBoller: The day #oilers got their much needed big brother home. #yeg.
- @focuscom: Am I the only one who doesn't think Ryan Smyth coming back to #Oilers is a good thing? Don't get me wrong, I like Smitty...
- @metallicat51: Smyth coming back is a fantastic day for the organization, the fans, and the city.
- @marshaboyd: Nice to see Oilers on winning side of a trade! Plus the return of the Mullet who can still play and will help kiddies is great
- @daveloken: Awesome! Great to have him back! He is a great talent and leader.

Wedding saved from ashes

► Local businesses throw couple's ceremony after home lost ► $20K donated for 120-guest nuptials

SHELLEY WILLIAMSON
EDMONTON@METRONEWS.CA

When their Slave Lake home burned down in May's wildfires, Shayne Carroll and Nicole Seatter thought all hope for their June 11 wedding had also gone up in smoke.

But thanks to an outpouring of support, the couple's dream day went off without a hitch, complete with a Paul Brandt serenade.

"They had their eyes closed, praying, when he walked in. I don't think there was a dry eye," said Linda Kuhn of Eagle's Nest Catering in Beaumont, who donated the ceremony site, reception and rehearsal dinner at the Eagle Rock Golf Course.

The country star called the couple "an inspiration."

► Four wedding planners, including Cheri Tetreault, helped pull off the whirlwind wedding, with donations by Starlight DJ Services, Marlow and Richards flowers, Adara Hair & Beauty, A Timeless Celebration and Red Paper Threads.

"I was so moved by hearing the story of Shayne and Nicole, and the triumph of their love over the adversity that they faced, that I immediately wanted to be a part of their celebration," said Brandt. "In the grand

Museum hosts the last Airfest

It was a bittersweet day for aviation enthusiasts at the last Airfest yesterday.

Alberta Aviation Museum executive director Thomas Hinderks said the rezoning of the airport means the museum will not be able to bring major aircrafts, like the Hawk One, to the show.

"It's unfortunate, especially when you see the hawk," Hinderks said. "People love that stuff, and you're just not going to be able to see that (anymore)."

Raising a gender-neutral society

► Breaking down gender roles is a core mission in Sweden's preschool curriculum ► Not everyone on board

At the Egalia preschool in Stockholm, staff avoid using words like "him" or "her" and address the 33 kids as "friends" rather than girls and boys.

From the colour and placement of toys to the choice of books, every detail has been carefully planned to make sure the children don't fall into gender stereotypes.

"Society expects girls to be girly, nice and pretty, and boys to be manly, rough and outgoing," says Jenny Johnsson, a 31-year-old teacher. "Egalia gives them a fantastic opportunity to be whoever they want to be."

The preschool is among the most radical examples of Sweden's efforts to engineer equality between the sexes from childhood onward. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Too far?

► Some parents worry things have gone too far. An obsession with obliterating gender roles, they say, could make the children confused and ill-prepared to face the world outside kindergarten.

► "Different gender roles aren't problematic as long as they are equally valued," says Tanja Bergkvist, a 37-year-old blogger and a leading voice against what she calls "gender madness" in Sweden.

► Those bent on shattering gender roles "say there's a hierarchy where everything that boys do is given higher value, but I wonder who decides that it has higher value," she says. "Why is there higher value in playing with cars?"

Calgary teen to be youngest space traveller?

A Canadian teen could become the youngest person ever to go into space.

The 17-year-old Calgary boy is among hundreds of space tourists who have already reserved their place for a flight into the cosmos.

So far, 440 individuals have paid deposits for trips aboard billionaire Sir Richard Branson's Virgin Galactic spaceships and are waiting for final tests to be completed.

The teenager didn't want to be identified.

While many teenagers expect to get their driver's licence when they turn 16, travel agent Michael Broadhurst says the young Calgarian was already looking beyond the horizon.

"He had the money for the space trip put down for him when he was 16," Broadhurst said. "He's 17 now and he will fly at 18.

"He is actually the only one at the moment who is under 18 on the list."

Virgin Galactic won't fly anyone under 18.

The travel agent says it could be another year or two before the teenager, who will be accompanied by a parent, will actually fly, but in the meantime his family doesn't want him doing any interviews.

The Space Today website says Russian cosmonaut Gherman Titov was the youngest person ever to go to orbit. He flew in August 1961 at the age of 25.

According to Virgin Galactic, 23 Canadians — 17 men and six women — are among the space voyagers who have reserved a flight, which costs $200,000 US for each traveller.

Israel under fire for media-ban threat

Israel yesterday threatened to ban international journalists for up to a decade if they join a flotilla planning to breach the Israeli blockade of the Gaza Strip.

The warning reflected Israeli jitters about the international flotilla, which comes just over a year after a similar mission ended in the deaths of nine Turkish activists in clashes with Israeli naval commandos.

Israel is eager to avoid a repeat of last year's raid, which drew heavy international condemnation and ultimately forced Israel to ease its blockade on Hamas-controlled Gaza. Israel says the blockade is needed to prevent Hamas from smuggling weapons into the territory.

The Foreign Press Association, which represents hundreds of journalists working for international news organizations in Israel and the Palestinian territories, condemned the Israeli decision and urged the government to cancel the order.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Opposing views

► Organizers of the flotilla say the mission is necessary to draw attention to the plight of Gaza's 1.6 million residents.

► The Israeli blockade has caused heavy damage to Gaza's economy: Unemployment is estimated at close to 50 per cent, and the territory still suffers from a shortage of badly needed construction materials.

► Israel says there is no humanitarian crisis and says the flotilla is little more than a provocation aimed at stirring up trouble.

Mail on the move once again

Mail could be moving again by tomorrow following speedy Senate approval of government legislation ordering locked-out Canada Post workers back to their jobs.

During a rare Sunday sitting, senators vigorously debated — but ultimately approved — a bill that sets the stage for resumption of mail service.

The legislation received royal assent just hours later.

As the bill made its way through the Senate, members of the upper chamber heard testimony from federal ministers, Canada Post executives and union members.

Letter sorting should resume today in preparation for delivery tomorrow, Canada Post chief operating officer Jacques Cote told the senators.

Determined Filipino family ignores skeptics to succeed in Canada

When Erick Alfonso meets immigrants who feel overwhelmed, he gives them hope by telling his own family's story. In fact, the Manila native and his wife achieved personal success in a remarkably short time, by ignoring skeptics who scoffed at their Canadian dreams.

Now working as a Manager of Customer Service at Scotiabank in Calgary, Alberta, Erick remembers how friends discouraged them from migrating to Canada with their five young children.

"They told us that you need Canadian experience to find a job," recalls the former IT project manager at a Philippine bank. "But we decided to try because we knew it was a good country to raise our kids."

Upon arrival in Canada in 2006, the Alfonsos discovered that many Filipino compatriots were juggling low paying jobs to survive. While Erick also took a temporary factory job to pay the bills, he refused to give up hope.

"A friend told me to open my first bank account at Scotiabank, and the teller was so helpful that I decided to submit my resumé," recounts Erick. To his amazement, the branch manager hired him within a month as a casual teller, and two months later, gave him a full-time customer support role.

"I was lucky that Scotiabank gave me the chance to prove myself," notes Erick, who has risen through the ranks and now serves many Asian customers at Calgary's Castleridge Centre Branch. "I can relate to them because I remember arriving with no bank account and no permanent address. The Scotiabanker explained everything to me, and I try to do the same for others today."

For example, Erick recommends the Scotiabank StartRight® Program¹ for Newcomers, which includes a free day-to-day bank account for one year², a wide range of VISA® card options³ and a number of other customized services and benefits. He also provides plenty of first-hand financial advice.

"Since many newcomers arrive with personal savings, I help them invest their savings wisely, including short-term investments such as a Tax-Free Savings Account (TFSA), which lets them earn tax-free income that they can access later for other needs," says Erick.

He also explains the importance of building a Canadian credit history. "Some newcomers are afraid to use credit cards, but I tell them how it can help them achieve other goals if they use it responsibly."

Erick also gives pep talks on job searches, based on his experience and that of his wife's, Maria Rosario, who within a year moved from a temporary accounting job to accounting manager with a local firm.

"We didn't do anything special, but we were determined. By believing in ourselves and supporting each other, we got through each difficulty," says Erick. "It is possible... If you show what you can do, you can build the right connections and open the door to a new life in Canada."

THIS ADVERTORIAL IS PREPARED BY SCOTIABANK.

Now established as a Scotiabank Manager, Erick Alfonso welcomes other new Canadians to his branch.

Obama's auto-pen wields new powers

► For decades, presidents let auto-pens scrawl their signatures ► But signing a bill into law believed a first

It's the open secret that nobody in the U.S. government wants to talk about: That cherished presidential signature that's tucked away in a scrapbook or framed for all to see might never have passed under the president's hand.

Jim Cicconi, who oversaw the use of auto-pens for former president George H.W. Bush, recalls that the plastic signature templates for the machines would wear out from repeated use. Ronald Reagan had 22 different signature templates, including "Ron," "Dutch" and other iterations, says Stephen Koschal, an autograph authenticator.

But U.S. President Barack

► The Atlantic Plus, the Signascript tabletop-model auto-pen, produces a signature.

Obama took the auto-pen into a new realm.

While travelling in Europe last month, Obama directed his staff in Washington to use an auto-pen to sign into law an extension of certain Patriot Act powers to fight terrorism. The legislation had been approved by Congress at the last minute.

That didn't sit well with 21 Republican House members, who asked him to sign again with his real signature because use of the auto-pen "appears contrary to the Constitution."

Obama's team argued that the faux signature passed constitutional muster.

Same-sex couples celebrate New York's new law

One of the world's oldest and largest gay pride parades turned into a carnival-like celebration of same-sex marriage yesterday as hundreds of thousands of revelers rejoiced at New York's new law giving gay couples the same marital rights as everyone else.

This year, the revelry was likely to go beyond floats, music and dancing. For the first time, it could include surprise engagements.

Thronges of cheering supporters greeted Gov. Andrew Cuomo as he led off the parade two days after signing the historic bill that made New York the sixth and most populous state to extend full marriage rights to gay couples.

"New York has sent a message to the nation," Cuomo said before the march down Fifth Avenue. "It is time for marriage equality."

Revelers hoisted signs that said "Thank you, Gov. Cuomo" and "Promise kept."

A half-million people were expected to participate.

"I'm really, really proud of New York," said Hannah Thielmann, a student at Fordham University in the Bronx who attended with her girlfriend, Christine Careaga.

The couple, both 20, were dressed as brides.

Careaga said her mother called her crying tears of joy after the New York senate voted on the measure

Friday.

"Every mother wants her child to be happily married," Careaga said.

In Chicago, organizers of that city's parade scrambled to repair dozens of floats after someone slashed their tires overnight at a garage on the South Side.

Parade co-ordinator Richard Pfeiffer said as many as 50 of the approximately 75 floats had damaged tires. The parade was to go ahead as planned.

Parade history

► The New York parade ends at Greenwich and Christopher streets, near the site where gays rebelled against authorities and repressive laws outside the Stonewall Inn in Greenwich Village on June 28, 1969 — an event that gave rise to the gay rights movement.

► A year later, several hundred people marched through the neighbourhood to commemorate the riots in what is commonly considered the world's first gay pride parade.

The law signed by Cuomo takes effect in 30 days. It was passed amid opposition from influential religious groups, including Roman Catholic bishops, in the state.

► Unpaid internships have taken the place of entry-level jobs ► Some positions illegal, experts say

Young Canadians eager to launch their careers say they're under mounting pressure to take unpaid internships that promise valuable experience and a foot in the door but rarely lead to permanent work.

Unpaid internships are replacing entry-level jobs, experts say, propelled in part by a recession.

But some of these positions are illegal, says Andrew Langille, an employment lawyer in Toronto who has researched labour standards and case law related to internships, because interns are doing work typically performed by paid employees, he says.

paid internships say they're part of a sweeping shift in workplace culture, one that rewards hungry workers willing to go above and beyond their job descriptions.

But many young grads, while willing to pay their dues at the office, say they can't afford to work for free, particularly while saddled with student loans.

"There's people who say young people expect everything right now, they want this great-paying job," says Heather Bellingham, a 26-year-old from Oshawa, Ont., who has held a string of unpaid internships since graduating from a film and television college program.

Hacker group folds

A publicity-seeking hacker group that has left a trail of sabotaged websites over the last two months, including attacks on law enforcement and releases of private data, said unexpectedly on Saturday it is dissolving itself.

Lulz Security made its announcement through its Twitter account. It gave no reason for the disbandment, but it could be a sign of nerves in the face of law enforcement investigations. Rival hackers have also joined in the hunt, releasing information they say could point to the identities of the six-member group.

LulzSec claimed hacks on major entertainment companies, FBI partner organizations, the CIA, the U.S. Senate and a pornography website.

Kevin Mitnick, a security consultant and former hacker, said the group had probably concluded that the more they kept up their activities, the greater the chance that one of them would make some mistake that would enable authorities to catch them. They've inspired copycat groups around the globe, he noted, which means similar attacks are likely to continue even without LulzSec.

unless they are so informed by the city auditor.

Apparently, they all reacted with horror, awe and anger when the auditor told them that the roads-design and construction branch was playing fast and loose with its budgeting process, completion deadlines, personnel policies and just about everything else.

Cue city councillors and the mayor.

Sound bites abound. Oh, yes, they are all concerned. Oh, yes, this is ever so serious. Oh, yes, this cruel waste of taxpayers' money must stop.

Their reactions would make you think that this is a unique set of circumstances they are dealing with.

One can only surmise that Edmonton is a well-run city where normally everything is done according to the book, and that this must be seen as the exception and not the rule.

Flashback to the city having to refund $3 million in traffic fines because it could not make its traffic cameras work properly. The response? Whoops!

Flashback to the cost of the Capitol Theatre that ballooned from $1.25 million to $14 million. The response? Whoops!

Flashback to December 2009: the city auditor points out that consultant contracts have grown exponentially and there are few controls. "Documents show 25 per cent of consulting contracts cost more than what was agreed upon. And almost 60 per cent of the time, the information submitted was deemed insufficient."

"Contracts were awarded even though no business plan was drawn up detailing what the administration wanted from the consultant, and with several contracts, no final report was ever delivered."

And just what was done about that? Who knows? Did the councillors and mayor dig into what was going on and why? Did heads roll? Were people terminated? Did anyone ever ask whether any of the consultants once worked for the city and were able to create sweetheart deals with their old friends and buddies? Your guess is as good as mine.

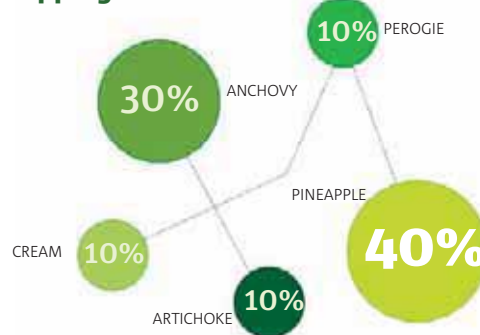

It's worth remembering that these politicians and city employees are the very same people who are going to decide how much more money they will take out of your pocket next year.

They are also the same people who are going to manage the development of the City Centre Airport lands. Whoops!

UNIVERSE. NASA says a newly discovered asteroid will have a close encounter with Earth today, but there's no need to worry.

The space agency's Near-Earth Object Program Office says the small space rock — dubbed 2011 MD — will pass 12,000 kilometres above Earth's surface over the southern Atlantic Ocean at about 7:30 a.m. MDT.

Though it will come close, it's not a distance record holder.

Earlier this year, a tiny asteroid flew by even closer — within 5,500 kilometres.

The International Business Times reported that 2011 MD will be the fifth-closest asteroid to graze past Earth.

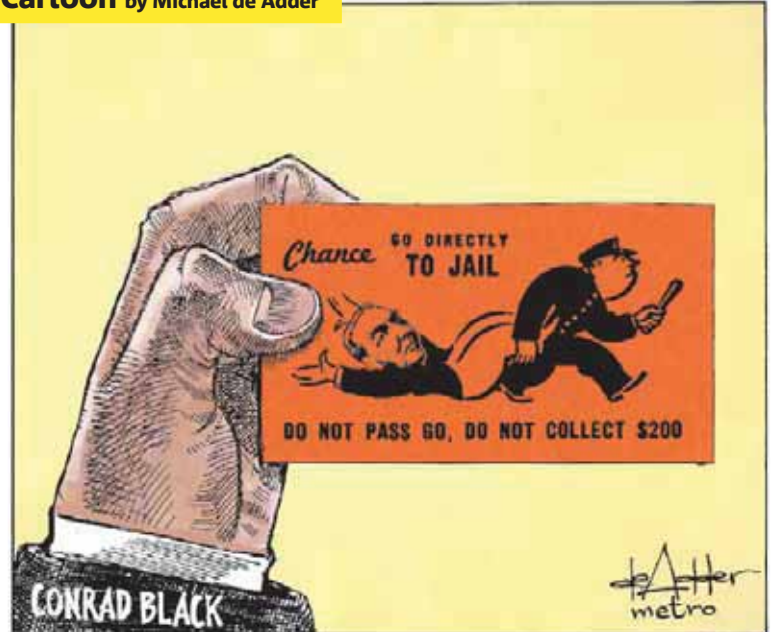

The latest asteroid measures 10 metres long and was discovered last week by telescopes in New Mexico.

Scientists say asteroids this size sail past Earth every six years.

The asteroid will briefly be bright enough that medium-size telescopes may be able to spot it.

Pixar Animation remains undefeated at the box office. The Disney unit's animated sequel Cars 2 cruised to a No. 1 finish with a $68 million opening weekend. That makes 12 wins in a row for Pixar since 1995's Toy Story. Cars 2 nearly matched the $68.1 million debut of Disney-Pixar's Up two years ago, though it was well below the company's record of $110.3 million for 2010's Toy Story 3. Premiering in second-place was Cameron Diaz's classroom comedy Bad Teacher with $31 million. The previous weekend's No. 1 flick, Ryan Reynolds' Green Lantern, fell to third with $18.4 million.

Russian movie fans were the first to see the third installment of the Transformers franchise — Transformers: Dark of the Moon — a glammed-up, red carpet world premiere which opened the 33rd Moscow International Film Festival.

Stars from the $200-million, high-octane 3D extravaganza gleefully soaked up the dizzying ambience of the Russian capital's cityspace, from the rooftop of the Ritz Carlton Hotel overlooking Red Square and the Kremlin, especially Michael Bay.

"You know, my granddad was from Russia," the 46-year-old director of the series confessed to reporters. "My granddad always said nothing good would come out of me and that all my life I'd work as a PE teacher. And so to spite him, I am holding the premiere in Moscow."

At the global press junket it was the irresistible John Malkovich who received the most attention from the Russian press; Malkovich has registered a stream of visits to the country that he almost considered a part of Russia's movie stardom. This time, the 57-year-old arrived in the company of a certain lady and two children.

"What will you show your kids in Moscow?" one reporter asked. Malkovich laughed off the question, preferring not to reveal too many secrets. "I didn't know that my kids were here," he said with a wry smile. "But if you see them around in the city, please tell them to urgently call me!"

But the Muscovite media circus wasn't done with their quizzing. Everyone was interested to know if Bay was not afraid in shooting the third

Transformers movie, after the second had been labeled worst movie of the year in many circles. "I find this particular question offensive, but nevertheless, I will thrive to answer it," Bay began. "Millions flocked to the theatres to see the second movie — not bad for the 'worst movie of the year,' right?"

Then Bay parries the question. "It's interesting — will the 'best movie of the year' be able to brag about something similar? As for the third movie, thanks to many innovations, has in my view turned out to be even better."

The song culminated Colbert's week-long rock odyssey series dubbed Dr. Pepper Presents StePhest ColbChella '011 — Rock You Like a Thirst-Icane.

After premiering the tune, Colbert and White sold copies in Manhattan from the rolling record

The reference of the song is a follow-up to Colbert's mock '80s new wave song, Charlene (I'm Right Behind You), a ballad sung from the perspective of a stalker. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The five-hour bash, hosted by the International Indian Film Academy, paraded its biggest matinee idols in a boisterous

It closed with a taste of Hollywood, as Slumdog Millionaire star Anil Kapoor escorted Swank onto the stage to present a best actor award to Bollywood king Shah Rukh Khan for the 9/11 melodrama, My Name is Khan.

"Namaste, Toronto. Namaste, India. Namaste, world," Swank said.

"Hollywood and Indian cinema must bring the world closer together. I believe in IIFA's vision — one people, one world."

Later, Gooding broke into an impromptu moonwalk before handing out a best director trophy to Karan Johar for the melodrama, My Name is Khan, declaring he was enthralled by Indian cinema.

"I think it's absolutely wonderful how India has travelled the world of entertainment and I would love to play and be a part of a Bollywood movie myself," said Gooding, who twirled for the fans.

The show capped a three-day campaign to deepen Bollywood's global fanbase with an annual celebration commonly known as the IIFAs.

Kapoor offered an enthusiastic greeting to the largely South Asian audience early in the night.

"For the first time in its 12-year history IIFA makes its North American debut and its biggest stars are you," Kapoor said in a mix of English, Hindi and Punjabi.

"Thank you Ontario. Thank you so much for making us feel the warmth in Canada."

Bollywood legend honoured

He's been called the ultimate showman, a cinema legend and one of India's most famous cultural figures. Yet in North America, few outside the South Asian community react at the mention of Raj Kapoor.

A collaboration between the Toronto International Film Festival and International Indian Film Academy is aiming to change that.

Raj Kapoor and The Golden Age of Indian Cinema opened TIFF's Bell Lightbox as the IIFAs wrap a star-studded weekend promoting Indian film.

The Kapoor clan has voiced its enthusiasm for the tribute.

Actress Kareena Kapoor, one of the famous Kapoor grandchildren, told reporters that this year's IIFAs were particularly special because of the spotlight on her grandfather.

Stressed & pregnant

► As the pregnant wife of disgraced U.S. congressman Anthony Weiner, Huma Abedin has had a long few weeks ► It got us wondering: How does extreme stress affect one's baby-to-be?

► When pregnant, how much stress is too much?

SAM CASTONE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

METRO WORLD NEWS

U.S. congressman Anthony Weiner recently resigned from office after sending lewd comments and photos to young women — and lying about it after getting caught by the press.

It was a shocking fall for a brash but effective politician — shocking more so because his wife, Huma Abedin, an aide to Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton, is reportedly in the early stages of pregnancy.

As parents, we won-

“Extreme stress in pregnancy can lead to preterm delivery and low birth weight babies. And there may even be some evidence that it can lead to miscarriage.”

DR. ARI BROWN, PEDIATRICIAN AND CO-AUTHOR OF EXPECTING 411

dered what affect the ongoing stress of a scandal might have on her baby.

All the mom-to-be books say you should try to reduce stress during the nine months. “It takes extreme amounts of stress to affect a pregnancy,” says Dr. Ari Brown, a pediatrician and co-author of Expecting 411. “By extreme, this means divorce, death of a family member, major financial disaster or loss of home by fire. The day-to-day stresses of a job or home life that most of us experience is not enough to worry about.”

Depending on your perspective, Weiner’s behaviour might fall into the “extreme” category.

“We all process stressful situations differently,” says Brown. “In the case of this particular situation, it is surely stressful for any pregnant woman to endure the emotional infidelity of her husband both privately and publicly.

“But, it would only be pure speculation how the two of them are handling this in the context of their relationship. And, frankly, it is none of our business!”

“What we do know medically,” Brown continues, “is that extreme stress in pregnancy can lead to preterm delivery and low birth weight babies. And there may even be some evidence that it can lead to miscarriage.”

One study in 2008 showed there might be a link between maternal stress and schizophrenia later in life.

“Stress increases the release of a hormone called cortisol, which is currently being investigated as the link to miscarriage, preterm labour, and unfortunate pregnancy outcomes,” says Brown.

The moral of this story (and you don’t need a medical study to prove it): If you’re a father-to-be, don’t cheat on your wife!

The not-so-sinful deviled eggs

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► This healthy version of the summer picnic and barbecue staple makes it more angelic than devilish

Deviled eggs are a classic accompaniment to summer picnics and barbecues. But they generally are loaded with fat and calories from the egg yolks and mayonnaise.

We set out to remake the filling to be flavourful, yet pack significantly less guilt. Egg yolks do have great nutritional value; the majority of an egg's vitamins and minerals are actually found in the yolk. But along with those nutrients are plenty of fat and cholesterol.

To lower the fat and cholesterol but keep the luscious flavour, we opted to use just some of the yolks. For the creaminess, we use a combo of low-fat mayonnaise and pureed low-fat cottage cheese..

Preparation:

1 Place eggs in a large saucepan and fill with cool water. Cover pan and bring to a boil over medium-high heat. Remove pan from heat and let sit for 15 minutes. Drain hot water, leaving eggs in pan. Fill pan with cold water and a cup of ice. Let eggs cool completely.

2 Meanwhile, in a food processor, combine cottage cheese, mayonnaise, mustard, vinegar and horseradish. Purée until smooth. Set aside.

Ingredients:

- 12 large eggs
- Ice
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) low-fat cottage cheese
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) low-fat mayonnaise
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) Dijon mustard
- 10 ml (2 tsp) cider vinegar
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) prepared horseradish
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) sweet pickle relish
- Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
- Fresh chives, to garnish
- Smoked paprika, to garnish

Trout gets colour treatment

Preparation:

1 In bowl, stir yellow pepper, cucumber, onions and coriander. In a small bowl, whisk together vinegar, oil, salt and pepper; pour over vegetables and gently stir to coat. Cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour. Before serving, stir in strawberries.

2 Fish: Brush trout with oil; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place fillets, skin side down, on greased grill over low heat; close lid and cook until fish is opaque and flakes easily when tested with a fork, about 15 minutes. Do not turn. Insert spatula between skin and flesh, removing flesh and leaving skin on grill. (When grill cools, it will come off

Gardening economics

► Rising food prices, food safety concerns keep gardening boom going ► How to learn from it

Many of the millions of North Americans who turned to gardening to save money during the recession appear to be sticking with it during the recovery as food prices remain high and interest in safe, fresh and local food grows nationwide.

Forty-three million U.S. households planned to grow at least some of their own food in 2009, a 19 per cent increase from the estimated 36 million who did the year before, said the National Gardening Association, citing the most recent figures available. Spending on food gardening — including growing vegetables, fruit trees, berries and herbs — jumped 20 per cent in one year to $3 billion in 2009 and stayed at that level last year, said Bruce Butterfield, research director for the non-profit association.

"It's a perfect storm for food gardening," Butterfield said, noting the downturn coincided with growing interest nationwide in eating locally produced food.

While the recession started in December 2007, he said the economy really "tanked" at the end of 2008, fuelling the gardening boom the following year. Butterfield said he expects the trend to continue with the U.S. Department

New careers

And for some people, gardening has provided a new career path.

► Green path Chef Courtney Contos, 37, a Vermont resident, said it was natural for her to start growing her own vegetables and herbs three years ago because she was always searching for the best-tasting ingredients. But having seen the savings and with the economy still struggling, she now hopes to teach others how to grow, preserve and cook their own vegetables.

of Agriculture's switch from a food pyramid representing its nutritional guidelines to a plate encouraging people to eat more fruits and vegetables, and people spending more time at home, either because they're unemployed or avoiding expensive vacations.

"A lot of folks, I think they kind of look at the evening news or read the paper or read something online, saying 'Jesus, this world is out of control and I can't have any influence on what happens out there but, by God, I can control what happens in my backyard,'" he said.

► Harvesting your own food can help save money.

Seed supplier W. Atlee Burpee & Co. said its sales of vegetable seeds and starter plants have jumped substantially in the past several years, with 30 per cent growth in 2009, 15 per cent to 20 per cent growth last year and another bump in March. The company based in Warminster, Pa., speculated recent rises in gas and produce prices have prompted more people to try to save money by growing their own food.

Ann Janda, 43, of Hinesburg, Vt., estimated gardening saves her and her husband $75 a month on groceries about eight months out of the year. They rarely buy any vegetables from June to August, relying on their five-by-16-metre garden to feed them. In the fall, they use tomato preserves for a lot of what they cook, and they freeze and can vegetables to use in the winter — everything from pickles to tomato sauce, frozen peas, pesto and kale.

Janda, who planted her first garden when she moved out of the city four years ago, said it's easy to "overspend" on supplies and equipment, but she and her husband try to do it as cheaply as possible. They use dead elm saplings from nearby woods as stakes, start most of their plants from seeds in reusable pots and trade seedlings with other gardeners.

Their tools are a spade, shovel and hoe, and their landlord tills the garden for them in exchange for vegetables later on.

Sam Bouji arrived from Egypt in 1989 with a young family and big hopes for the future.

In Canada for only a year, the Bouji family suffered a tragic loss when their four-year-old daughter drowned in a swimming pool accident.

Sam was devastated but realized he had to change his life if he were to save his family. "I will never forget but I had to move forward."

Sam threw himself into work with a vengeance, starting his own sales agency in his basement, amassing a huge salesforce and eventually establishing Global Education Marketing Corp.

Today, his company services 250,000 clients, but his proudest achievement is the 15,000 young people who have graduated from university and college with no debt.

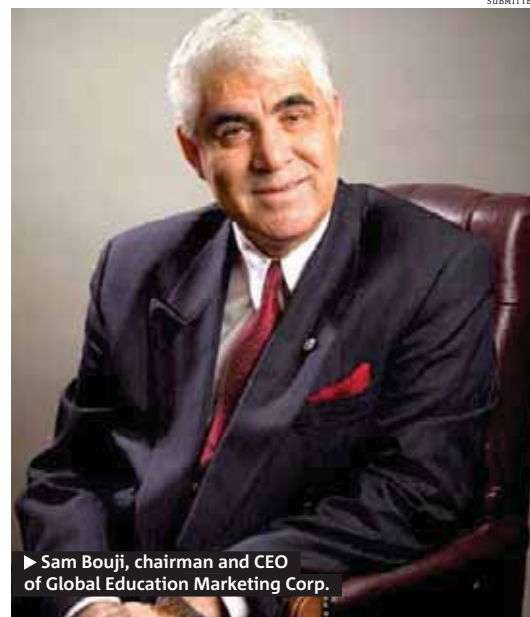

Sam's advice

- Come up with a plan, be patient and always persevere.
- People who think they can outsmart others in life will not make it.
- Help others achieve their goals.
- Have a peaceful life.

"It brings me so much joy when I see my employees helping others and making changes in other people's lives."

Sam Bouji's story is a triumph over tragedy and a true testament to the power of the human spirit.

"The older I get the more productive and wiser I become. I'm not retiring until 2053. That's the year I turn 100!"

5 hottest career paths

Here are five fast-growing jobs that may be of interest to new grads and second-career seekers.

Message therapist

Massage is a young industry that's growing by leaps and bounds as more people learn about the benefits of massage therapy. Job prospects are bright, the occupation lends itself to part-time work, and training is affordable.

Social media strategist

The social media field is starting to take off, job-wise, as companies embrace a new type of marketing. Recent grads have the edge as employers seek members of the younger generation to help target that demographic.

Accountant

Forget the green eyeshades stereotype. Accountants now do everything from audits and budgets to financial planning and analysis to advising companies as they create new products and services.

IT professional

Despite some layoffs and outsourcing of domestic jobs, work in the computer and IT-related fields continues to expand rapidly with no end in sight.

Caregiver for seniors

Jobs in senior care pay far less at $10 to $12 an hour than those of registered nurses and physician assistants, two of the most in-demand jobs in health care. But they are much easier to qualify for.

One career for a lifetime?

► The film Larry Crowne paints a picture of a man who's forced to pursue an entirely different career path after losing his job ► He heads back to college and rediscovers himself ► What if you had the choice to start again? ► Former Associated Press journalist Jessica Mintz explains how, and why, she made the decision to start over

We all have those moments: The alarm goes off, and we think, "Do I really have to go to work today?"

Most of the time, reason and routine win. We dismiss the thought, hop out of bed, hit the shower, have a coffee and merge into the morning commute.

Sometimes, though, we stop and really consider the question. Maybe we're burned out or unhappy with the job. Maybe we had abandoned a childhood dream or found a new passion along the way. And thanks to luck, financial planning and the support of loved ones we realize: Quitting is an option.

When I tell people I quit my job as a reporter for The Associated Press to become a veterinarian, many say they wish they could take that plunge. I think the reason so many don't is it's painful to admit we made a mistake. And quitting, well, isn't that just another word for failing?

In my case, my experience with animals was limited to childhood pets: a goldfish, two small lizards and a hermit crab. Recently, however, I adopted a mutt from the shelter and started volunteering there. When she was hurt in an accident, I spent a lot of time talking to surgeons and rehab specialists. That's when the idea of ditching the career I had pursued for more than a decade took hold.

I found countless reasons to doubt my motives. Was I reacting to the kindness and control shown by my own vets? Was I mistaking the pleasure of a new hobby for a calling? Changing careers is not uncommon, as it turns out; Americans typically do it five to seven times in their lives, and increasingly, they are seeking more meaningful work, said Kimberly Key, president of the National Employment Counseling Association.

"You didn't see this 25 to 50 years ago. People weren't trying to have meaningful careers. They were trying to focus on family, survive, and take care of the next generations," Key said. "As we evolved as a society, in our thirst for work, to survive, to grow, to be the best, to compete in the world, we lost something."

There also is an ongoing shift in the type of jobs available, from full-time positions to contract ones. Jobs that offer lifelong security and benefits are becoming endangered, Key said. Rather than see this as a negative, though, she thinks that accepting it can remove the stress and shame of changing careers.

A goal, but no win

► Christine Sinclair gets ball into German net, but Canadians drop World Cup opener 2-1 to two-time defending champions

She busted her nose and then bent it like Beckham. And then simply for effect, Canada's star striker Christine Sinclair blew a kiss to her coach.

Sporting a crooked nose and a well-deserved black captain's armband, Sinclair scored Canada's lone goal on a lovely bending free kick yesterday as the sixth-ranked Canadians opened the 2011 Women's World Cup with a 2-1 loss to two-time defending champion Germany.

"That's Sinky," said Canadian striker Melissa Tancredi. "She plays through anything, which is what a captain should do."

Sinclair's goal in the 82nd minute — No. 117 of her illustrious career — marked the first the mighty German side had conceded in a World Cup tournament since 2003. It also came 34 minutes after Canada's powerful five-foot-nine striker was knocked to her knees, plowed in the face by an elbow from Babett Peter.

"I looked at (Sinclair) — she takes the front post on corners — and thought, 'Oh my. Her nose is like a big zig-zag,'" said Canada's goalkeeper Erin McLeod. "I said, 'Do you really want to still be here?' And she said, 'Yeah, I got it.'"

"She's tough. She wears the armband for a reason."

The 28-year-old Sinclair was down on all fours on the Olympiastadion grass for several minutes after the harsh blow, for which no foul was given, and then was helped to the sidelines where she argued with a Canadian medical official to let her go back into the game. She swatted away his hand and said, "I'm fine. Don't touch me."

Canada's coach Carolina Morace was advised to pull her out of the game, the medical official bending Sinclair's nose to display the damage. But the Burnaby, B.C., native was back in the game moments later, and Morace has no doubt her gutsy captain will be back on the pitch Thursday when the Canadians take on France.

"What do you think? If she played today with the nose broken, do you think I can take her off the field next time?" the Italian coach said with a laugh.

Sinclair was sent to a nearby Berlin hospital immediately after the game, and Morace said she'll likely wear a protective mask in the next game.

"It doesn't look the prettiest right now," Tancredi said, with a giggle.

Romero a double threat as Jays sweep Cardinals

The Toronto Blue Jays expected Ricky Romero to go deep into the game. Getting a major contribution from his bat was a huge bonus.

Romero threw a four-hitter for his second career shutout and helped break it open with his first career hit as the Blue Jays whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 5-0 yesterday for a three-game sweep.

"I'm not a good hitter," Romero said. "So it definitely feels good to help myself out in that situation."

J.P. Arencibia homered and Yunel Escobar had two hits and an RBI for the Blue Jays, who had lost four in a row before arriving at Busch Stadium. All three starters worked at least six innings for Toronto, which climbed back to .500 and earned its first series sweep since May 13-15 at Minnesota.

Manager John Farrell said he anticipated in spring training that Romero would assume a leadership role in the rotation, and hasn't been disappointed.

"He's the lead guy and guys follow his example," Farrell said. "He's on a very good run in terms of total innings pitched but yet you look at total number of pitches thrown he's been very efficient for the better part of two months."

The Cardinals wound up a 3-6 homestand and have lost 12-of-15 overall. They are 1-5 since Albert Pujols was sidelined for an anticipated six weeks with a broken left wrist, and have scored three or fewer runs in four of those games.

The Blue Jays beat the Cardinals 6-3 on Saturday night, and Jose Bautista hit his 23rd home run on Friday as the Jays won 5-4.
